FRYEBURG SLUGGERS TAKE GOULD 13-8

A heavy hitting Fryeburg team scored an easy victory over the Gould team, 13-8, in a game played under perfect weather conditions Saturday morning. Three times during the contest a Fryeburg man walloped a ball across the road for a home run and there were other long hits sandwiched in. Amato, the Gould captain and left fielder, finally found it necessary to play in the middle of the main highway.

However, the game was not as one-sided as might seem at first. Discounting the six-run second inning which the visitors had, you will find the score about even. Gould reached on the two Fryeburg pitchers but did not score. That has been one of the great troubles so far this year. Sixty-three men have reached first base and only 31 have scored. This has been caused by certain batters failing to come through, watching good balls sail by for called strikes.

The Gould team looked good on defense except for the second inning when things rather fell apart. Robertson and Amato are leading their teammates offensively. "Billy" has reached base 11 times in 16 times up while "Nick" has reached 11 times while at bat 16 times but only officially 10 times. Coolidge, Wright and Amato are tied in runs scored in the three games with five each.

SOUTH PARIS NINE HERE SATURDAY

South Paris High, with a 2 to 1 victory over Fryeburg, comes to Bethel Saturday to engage the Gould postmen in a Western Maine Conference game. Fryeburg trimmed the local club but Gould has a one sided win over Norway, who in turn defeated South Paris, Saturday. That makes quite a scramble and perhaps its best for each to figure in his own way the outcome of the battle Saturday. Suffice to say, Gould and Paris always put on an exciting exhibition in any sport.

The game Saturday is called at 2 p. m. with Gill as umpire at the plate and Farrar on the bases.

ERNEST M. WALKER

Ernest M. Walker died Tuesday morning at his home after an illness of several weeks, following several years of ill health.

He was born in Lovell April 24, 1885, the son of Seth and Mary Ellen Mason Walker. Coming to Bethel in boyhood, he attended the town schools, graduating from Gould Academy and Gray's Business College.

He was associated with the firm of Byron Greenough & Co. of Portland for 25 years, returning to Bethel on account of the ill health of his father. He had served as president of the Bethel National Bank and secretary of the Board of Trustees of Gould Academy. He was a supporter of the Republican party, a member of the Universalist Church, a charter member of the Bethel Lions Club, and a 3rd degree Mason.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Ethel Metcalf of Farmington, and a niece, Mrs. Carroll Mitchell of Augusta.

Funeral services are to be held today at Greenleaf's Funeral Home at 2 o'clock, Rev. M. A. Gordon officiating. Burial will be at Riverside Cemetery.

LEGION UNIT TO SELL POPPIES HERE MAY 23

Poppies of patriotic remembrance will bloom in Bethel on Saturday, May 23, Mabel O'Brien, President of George A. Mundt Unit, No. 81, of the American Legion Auxiliary, has announced.

Every man, woman and child in town will be asked to wear a poppy on that day in honor of the men who have given their lives for America. The poppies will be distributed by volunteer workers from the Auxiliary and the coins contributed for them will be used in Legion and Auxiliary work for the war disabled, their families and the families of the dead.

The poppies which will be distributed here have been made by disabled veterans at Togus. Making the little red flowers has given many veterans employment during the winter and spring months. The work is limited to men receiving little or no government compensation and those with families to support.

Contributions received for the poppies on Poppy Day are a principal source of support for the vast welfare work carried out by the Legion and Auxiliary among the disabled men and dependent families. With the new war adding to America's list of war victims, there will be greatly increased need for funds during the coming year.

Those attending the annual meeting of the Congregational-Christian Conference of Maine at Fryeburg Wednesday were Rev. H. T. Wallace, F. E. Russell, Mrs. H. P. Austin, Mrs. E. F. Ireland and Mrs. Laurence Lord.

How To Avoid Break-downs In Your Spring Land Fitting

By Eric Patterson
Farm Supt. N. Y.
State Institute of Agriculture

PERHAPS because they are the simplest of all farm tools, the plow and harrow are usually the worst neglected. Even the most progressive farmers are too often inclined to take care of them by the hit-or-miss, by-guess-and-by-gosh method.

Our experience here at the N. Y. State Institute has indicated that those few "trouble-spots" which cause most of the "hold-up" are the result of improper lubrication. This is true of most farm machinery, and I cannot advise too strongly the use of top-grade oils and greases—not only to insure more efficient operation but to stretch out the life of your machinery.

My last article covered four plowing "trouble-spots." I think the ones pictured here are equally important.

AUTHOR'S NOTE: It is not the policy of the N. Y. State Institute of Agriculture to recommend any specific products, and nothing in this article should be so construed.

KEEP YOUR PLOWSHARES SHARP! Dull shares waste tractor fuel and energy. Repoint or renew shares to reduce draft to a minimum. This will not only save money, but turn out a cleaner, more efficient job. (Note: Watch angle when sharpening. That shown in picture is correct.)

CLEAN OIL FILTER or replace every time your tractor engine oil becomes dark. This keeps dirt out of the vital moving parts of your engine. Always use a heat-resisting premium oil in your crankcase. It saves money in the long run. Follow instruction book closely for oil change.

CHECK BOLTS THOROUGHLY. Be sure they are of proper size and securely tightened. Loose bolts and lost bolts cause play between parts which results in breakage. USE WOODEN BREAK-PINS to prevent breakage. Do not replace with bolts. Drawbar safety spring latch also prevents breakage, provided spring tension is adjusted properly.

ALWAYS WATCH YOUR LUBRICATION. The power angling device on your disc harrow should be kept dust-tight—and well lubricated at all times. I recommend the same kind of motor oil that you use in your tractor crankcase. Your disc harrow bearings should be lubricated every four hours with a good grade of tough chassis lubricant that sticks to its job. Don't forget that a harrow operates in dirt; and wear-resisting grease keeps the dirt out.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

The daring daylight air raids on the principal Japanese cities brought new hope, new resolve, to all the United Nations. For the first time, the war has been taken straight home to the heart of the enemy. The Japanese people have at last had a taste of what death and destruction from the skies is like. And, vitally important, these raids are the forerunners of great things to come.

Many experts are convinced that Japan's weakest point is her industrial areas. They are concentrated in a relatively small number of localities. Her cities' suburbs are spotted with vital aircraft, munitions and other war plants. Out of those plants come the supplies which make it possible for her to maintain her ever-lengthening lines of conquest. Out of her shipyard, come the ships to replace the vessels sunk or put out of action by United Nations' warcraft. Destroy a large part of these industrial installations and Japan's capacity to wage war and to consolidate her victories will be ended.

At the same time, there is considerable misunderstanding in this country as to Japan's vulnerability to incendiary attacks. Many people believe that Japanese cities consist of nothing but tiny paper and wooden homes and buildings which would burst into flame at the touch of a match. That is true of many Japanese residential areas. It is definitely not true of her industrial plants. They are as well built as any in this country. They are made of steel and concrete, precisely as ours, and they were built with an eye to the possibility of attack from the air. And they are protected with heavy concentrations of anti-aircraft and fighter planes.

On top of that, it is probable that no people on earth is better schooled in fire defense than the Japanese. For many years, the government has made this kind of instruction obligatory and very elaborate preparations have been made to prevent conflagrations. Tremendous sums have been spent for fire-fighting equipment. Japan has had many great fires in the past, the bulk of them caused by earthquakes, and the experience gained has been aggressively put to use.

To materially harm the Japanese war effort, therefore, will be a hard, slow and costly job. It will require tremendous numbers of major bombers, and vast amounts of high explosive and incendiary bombs. It is likely that the first Allied raids were in the nature of "feelers," to give an idea of what can be done in the future.

What are the best bases for United Nations' raids on Japan? There are several answers to that. It is possible for the largest four-engine bombers to make the flight from Australia or Alaska but they would have to materially reduce their bomb load in order to carry sufficient gas. Further, long-over-water flights are risky and costly. It is said that we still have air fields in some of the Philippine Islands, and they, of course, provide ideal points for operations. The distance is very short and maximum bomb loads could be carried. There are many points in China which are equally good. To use Chinese bases, however, will mean that great quantities of supplies and men must be transported across the Pacific.

Many believe that Japan and Russia will be at war within a matter of months. If that happens, the United Nations will have access to excellent, fully-developed bases in the Vladivostok and other areas. Here, again the flight to Japan proper is a short one.

Lately, it is perfectly possible to bomb Japan from carriers off her coast. The carriers can leave as soon as the planes depart, and the planes, after unloading their bombs can fly on and land in China. But aircraft carriers cannot be used by big bombers, and they carry relatively few planes.

The first bombings are considered by many to mark the beginning of the gigantic Pacific offensive which General Douglas MacArthur has promised. It is likely that, in time, especially aggressive attempts will be made to destroy Japanese hydro-electric installations in the mountains. She has no coal, and so has developed her water resources to the limit. A series of dams provide practically all of the energy which motivates her industries. Japan has used the airplanes to good advantage, but she is finding that it is a two-edged weapon.

When Your Back Hurts—

And Your Strength and Energy Is Below Par

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on something less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.

In 1901 he raised 131 bushels of strawberries, 533 of raspberries, 15 of currants, and 46 of blackberries. Mr. Maxim does not confine himself to fruit growing, however, as he harvested 500 bushels of potatoes last fall.

SELECTEES PROMISED FURLOUGHS TO SETTLE HOME AFFAIRS

Pointing out that the examination of registrants by local board physicians is merely a preliminary examination, to eliminate the obviously unfit, Gen. James W. Hanson, State Director of Selective Service, today warned registrants that they should await actual induction into the Army before making any final disposition of financial and personal affairs.

"Every selectee," the Director said, "must undergo final examination at an Army reception center. The examination by local board physicians is merely preliminary to the Army test. No selectee, therefore, should assume that because he has passed the local board, tests, or even because he has been ordered to an Army reception center for possible induction, that he will be accepted by the Army."

Registrants who are inducted will be given ample time to return to their homes to adjust their personal affairs within a few days after induction stated, pointing out that a liberalized policy regarding furloughs for newly inducted registrants has been announced by the War Department. He said.

"Local boards have been instructed to attach to the delivery list for each group of prospective inductees the names of those for whom furloughs are recommended, and the Selective Service System has been assured by the War Department that such furlough will invariably be granted if recommended by the local board."

These furloughs for inducted registrants will not begin later than five days after induction, the Director said, and will not exceed ten days except that when an inductee lives at a considerable distance from the Army reception center, a leave up to fifteen days may be granted.

"This new Army policy should prevent any undue hardship to selectees who are inducted," Director Hanson asserted. "In the past there were some cases of hardship under the present system of inducting forthwith selectees who pass their final physical examination at Army reception centers. Some men, expecting induction, had made final disposition of their personal matters. Now, every prospective inductee can be assured that if he requires reasonable time to return to his home to dispose of his personal affairs, leave will be granted to him within a few days after his induction."

All local boards in Maine have been advised to give full publicity to the policy now in effect, the Director said, and to inform their selectees not to release their possessions or otherwise make final disposition of financial and personal affairs, before final action is taken by the Army Examining Board.

YOUR CAR How to Get the MOST out of It

STRETCHING YOUR TIRE MILEAGE

The vital importance of conserving rubber can't be overemphasized. Nor can it be stressed too often that you, as a car owner, can help save rubber by careful use of your tires.

Remember, you pay in good rubber for jack-rabbit starting, speeding, curb scraping and slam-bang driving.

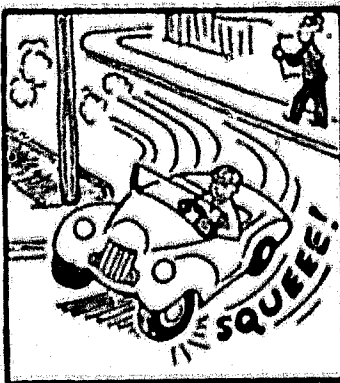

Learn your correct tire pressures by heart and check your tires at least weekly. Under-inflated tires build up excessive internal heat and create extra road friction. This wears out the tires and wastes gas. Mild over-inflation (2 or 3 pounds) is not harmful, but tires that are too hard bruise more easily, wear at the center and are not as skid-proof. Don't forget that pressures may vary as much as 5 pounds as a result of temperature changes, also that tires lose air by seepage even when there are no leaks.

Never drive without valve caps. They keep out dirt and help to keep in air.

Keep your tires away from oil and out of the sun as much as possible.

Keep your tires. Thefts are on the increase. Don't leave your car out at night. Jot down the tire serial numbers.

Note: This is the fifth in a series of articles based on the book, Automobile User's Guide, published by the Customer Research staff of General Motors. Next article: More About Tires.

BRIDGTON H. S. 6-GOULD 4

Gould lost its second conference game in three starts by dropping a close game to Bridgton High School 6-4 here Wednesday afternoon.

Gould scored two runs in the second when Coolidge reached on an error and scored on Wright's double. Wright then tallied while Reid was being thrown out. Bridgton came back and tied the score in the third chiefly through some very daring base running. Gould went ahead again in the sixth when Robertson scratched a single through second, stole second, and tallied on Wright's third straight hit. Bridgton really salted the game away in the seventh when Carsley beat out an infield hit and then Fadden also reached when McInnis tried for the runner at third and, after Sawyer had fanned making the second out, Stuart lofted a routine fly to left field which Captain Amato lost in the sun and which bounded out into and down the road for a home run. Gould scored once more in the seventh when Amato singled as did Emmons and Robertson to score one run.

The Gould pitching seems to improve with each game and the general team play is better, but more practice is needed in base running and also more drive in some of the close situations of a ball game.

The SNAIL CLOUD

Clouds make grand pictorial of back

FROM time immemorial following masses of cloud have been seen. Undoubtedly man looked up at the sky and wondered where the thunderhead from. The Greeks believed the hiding behind the rain amused himself by hurling earth the thunderbolts that fashioned for him. Today the lists have told us where the come from, and what make him flash, but we still like clouds in the sky and many like to picture them with our eyes.

Doing this, as in the above, will be a simple matter. Have a filter to aid in your A filter—be it yellow, orange—will hold back certain rays from the sky proper and increase the contrast between clouds and the sky.

A deep yellow filter was used making this week's illustration a considerable degree of contrast.

CLOUD PHOTOGRAPHY

Clouds make grand pictorial subjects by themselves, and the finest kind of background for outdoor scenes.

FROM time immemorial great billowing masses of cloud have fascinated men. Undoubtedly primeval man looked up at the sky and wondered where the thunderheads came from. The Greeks believed that Zeus, hiding behind the rain clouds, amused himself by hurling at the earth the thunderbolts that Vulcan fashioned for him. Today the scientists have told us where the clouds come from, and what makes lightning flash, but we still like to see clouds in the sky and many of us like to picture them with our cameras.

Doing this, as in the above picture, will be a simple matter if you have a filter to aid in your job. A filter—be it yellow, orange, or red—will hold back certain light rays from the sky proper and thus increase the contrast between the clouds and the sky.

A deep yellow filter was used in making this week's illustration, and a considerable degree of contrast was obtained. But if a red filter had been used, even more striking contrast between the clouds and the sky would have resulted.

That's all there is to the technical side of picturing clouds, or getting clouds in the background of your pictures, but pictorially picturing clouds isn't all a matter of filters and proper exposure. Actually, to be successful, cloudscapes have to be treated much like any landscape picture—and that means you must include some familiar subject in the foreground to be used as a basis of comparison for the distances involved. That familiar subject can be a man, a tree, a house, an animal, or part of the landscape. In our picture this week, it's the graceful gulls.

Don't keep your eyes to the ground at all times. Look at the sky occasionally. Look for interesting clouds and you'll find your pictures ready made.

"INSPIRATION FOR GOSSIP"

"Do you now what they're saying about the man down at the new airplane plant?" my neighbor asked me breathlessly the other day, her face flushed with the excitement of the awful news she bore!

"No," I said calmly and perhaps a little coolly, "I don't, and even if I did, I wouldn't believe it."

"Oh, but I heard it direct from a woman who got it from a friend..."

"Who got it from another friend," I interrupted.

"But how did you know how many people it came through? she asked in surprise.

"Because all the disturbing stories that are going around these days follow the same pattern. They never come direct from the people to whom the thing happened. And when you try to trace them back, and back to their source, somewhere along the line they simply evaporate."

"Then you don't think it's all true?"

"Of course not," I scoffed. "In fact, the chances are that not one word of it is true! You know that today the chief target of the Nazi propaganda office that has wrought such havoc in Europe is our own United States. All of the many tricks these people have for setting group against group—faction against faction—and undermining the fabric of an entire nation are now being used on us. Spreading stories like the one you want to tell me is one of tested methods. There are different groups in this country. Old Americans and foreign born; Catholics and Protestants; Jews and Gentiles; Negroes and whites, and perhaps most vulnerable of all—management and labor.

"In the management-labor controversy active today in many war plants, they find one of their best hopes of dissension that might sabotage our war effort. So they spread news of labor disloyalty on one hand and news of management greed and unfairness on the other. Preposterous stories are told and flames of hate are fanned. To tie up one important war factory would be as good for our enemies as winning a military battle.

"So don't listen to such stories. Above all don't spread them. The rank and file of men in war plants are doing their jobs faithfully and efficiently, while industrial leaders, the men responsible for delivery of planes, guns, tanks and ships, are on the job sometimes twelve to fifteen hours a day, six to seven days a week, in order to meet the President's gigantic victory production program—which today, as the President himself has said, is actually being realized!"

2. LAST CHANCE Americans had to acquaint themselves with Australia was in 1941, when part of U. S. Navy received enthusiastic welcome there.

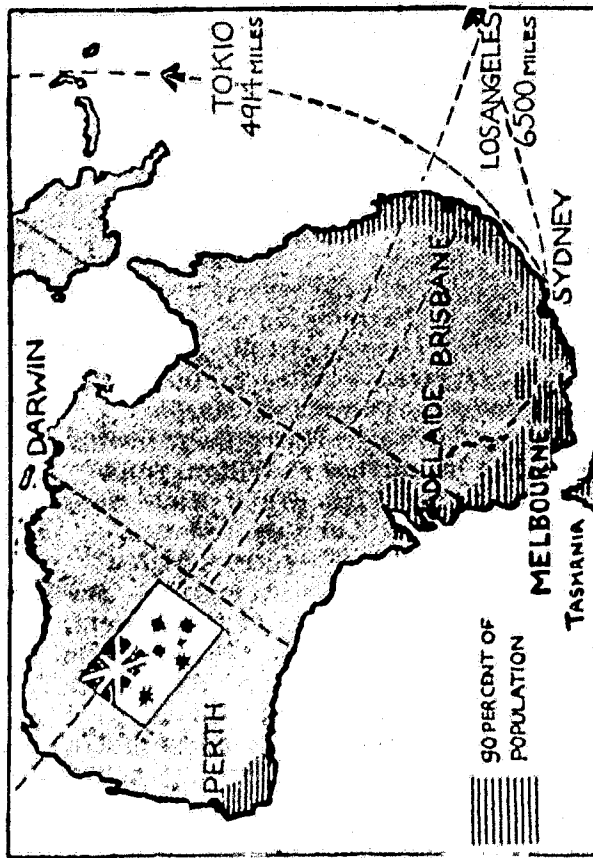

3. VISITORS found a country much like the U. S., with sheep and cattle stations (ranches) like the West's. Australia is world's largest wool exporter.

6. IN RECENT YEARS, Australia has also built up an industry, manufacturing metal and steel products, machines, ships and railway equipment.

OUR PACIFIC ALLIES: AUSTRALIA

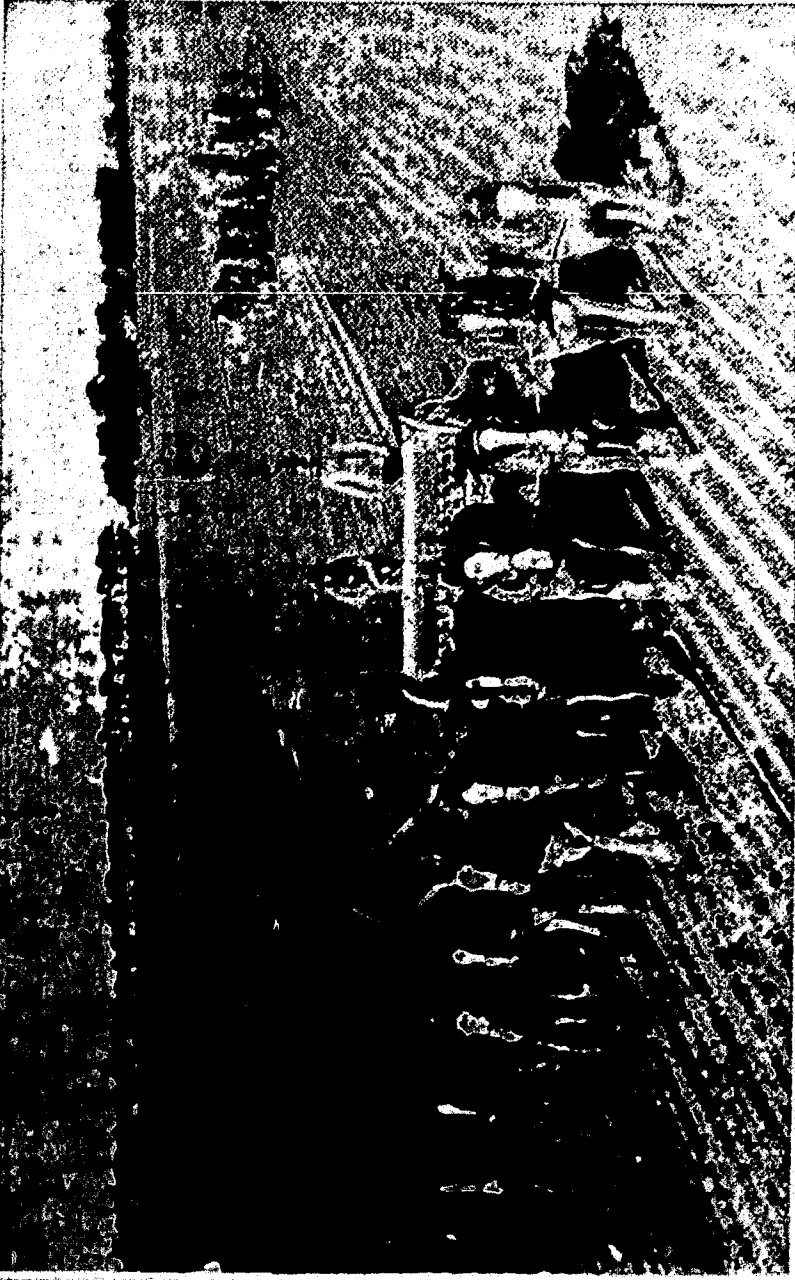

SIX THOUSAND MILES due southwest of Los Angeles—and only 400 miles from the embattled East Indies—lies a little-known continent, which is probably more like the United States than any other part of the world. This continent, Australia, is almost exactly the size and shape of the continental U. S. Its climate, like ours, is varied; its land, like ours, part fertile, part desert. Too, like the U. S., Australia was once a colony of Great Britain, then won democratic self-government and developed along independent lines, relying on ocean frontiers to protect her from possible enemies. But unlike the U. S., Australia does not yet have a sufficiently large population to make and to man the machines needed for defense against a powerful and determined enemy, and she has already learned that her oceans no longer protect her.

5. BUT FARMING is so mechanized that few people are needed, and most of population lives in cities and towns. People are as sports-loving as are Americans.

1. NINETY PERCENT of Australia's seven million people live in a fertile strip along the southeastern coast like Sydney (above) and Melbourne.

4. THEY FOUND that Australia's wealth, like ours, is based on agriculture and natural resources. Though half desert, with no water available for irrigation, Australia has vast farms and grain fields which make her one of world's main wheat producers.

Rationing Affects Everybody

The rationing of tires and gasoline should remind everyone of the importance of conserving every resource to the utmost. Only a few will be able to replace their tires and the use of motor fuel will be much restricted.

An obvious lesson: buy as near home as you can.

Consistent patronage of your home dealers will enable you to secure better service; will encourage your local merchant to carry more complete stocks;
and will result in noticeable travel economies for yourself.

FARMERS' INCOMES HIGHER FSA LOANS HELP MANY

The net worth of the average Franklin and northern Oxford County farm family borrowing from the Farm Security Administration increased last year from about $1,240 on January 1 to about $1,948 on December 31, FSA County Supervisor Cecil A. Ware estimated today.

"It is a remarkable performance," commented Mr. Ware, "considering labor difficulties, higher prices for supplies, and other conditions of last year. But more impressive than the figures are the gains made by low-income families in better health, their increased self-confidence and their ability to take care of themselves without having to rely upon governmental relief."

"We in FSA feel that the low-income families of the county (or counties) have demonstrated beyond doubt that they have the will and the ability to take care of themselves if they are helped over the roughest spots in the road to self-sufficiency."

"And this year," the county supervisor added, "we expect net worth increases to be greater than ever. Now, if ever, is the time for low-income families to help themselves—and incidentally, their country—by growing more food."
